

Floor Stripping & Coating Overshoes

Floor stripping and coating overshoes are worn over existing footwear to protect floors and provide traction to reduce slips and falls. They are worn on slippery floors or when workers are removing an existing or adding a new floor finish. The surface covers the bottom of the foot and is nonmarrying. Traction overshoes have a sole that is coated with a nonmarrying abrasive grit to increase traction and protect floor surfaces. Rigid-spiked overshoes minimize contact with freshly applied coatings, allowing it to flow back into place after workers walk on it.

Traction Devices

Traction devices attach to the bottom of existing footwear to provide secure footing when walking on ice, snow, and other wet or slippery surfaces. Transitional traction devices are attached with straps and can be moved out of the way when moving indoors. Devices for sustained use are designed to be worn for longer periods of time either indoors or outdoors.
