Tamper-Evident Seals

Security seal presses crimp the wire on lead and wire seals. Crimping the wire provides a more secure seal than soft wire, allowing the seal to secure doors, containers, and other applications where tamper resistance is required. Once crimped, the seal can't be opened without detection.

Lead and wire seals provide tamper evidence if broken, making them ideal for light security and loss prevention in agricultural, law enforcement, storage, and utilities applications. They're placed on water meters, drums, and hoppers and are sealed by passing the wire through the metal disc, then crushing the disc with a press.

Lead and wire seal components replace used or broken elements from lead and wire seals.
